

Weekly Report for September 26-30, 2016

With the seasons changing, we can feel it while out in the field. Mornings are quite cold, layering up and stretching became a part of the daily routine.

There were 101 test pits completed and approximately 114 test pits flagged. The team has really improved in the field. It has been a great experience for them to be able to do these things on their own; they have gained so much confidence. They understand the process better and are more knowledgeable. We have collected a sample of cobbles of chert that we found in the test pits but they are non-cultural. We just wanted those finds to be noted for following fieldwork.

On Tuesday, September 27, the client (Christian Matossian, Steve Morck, Brent Meulenkamp) along with Stantec (Greg Johnson and Karen Gillam) and Green Eagle (Karen Paul) came out to the field. The crew was excited about having them out there. They showed off some of their skills. It was also a great opportunity for the client to see the program/project in progress. We also talked about how effective the program was and things we can do moving forward.
